

Information Sheet for the Application for a Certificate of Identity (Travel Document)

Travelling with a passport from the country of origin and residence permit or card for persons with subsidiary protection status

The holder of the passport of the country of origin with Austrian residence permits is entitled to travel freely to Schengen countries for three months for tourism purposes (however, no work may be taken up there). In addition to the residence permit, the passport must also be taken along. This also applies when travelling to Austria's neighbouring countries and other Schengen countries.

Residence permits that allow you to travel to Schengen countries for three months along with your passport from your country of origin include:

- residence permits according to the Settlement and Residence Act (e.g. residence permit, red-white-red card, red-white-red card plus, etc.)
- Residence permit according to the Asylum Act (residence authorisation, residence authorisation plus, residence authorisation with special protection)
- Card for persons with subsidiary protection status ("grey card")

Requirements for applying for a certificate of identity

- Persons with subsidiary protection status who cannot obtain their own passport
- Stateless persons or persons of undetermined nationality with legal residence
- Under certain conditions also other foreigners, provided that the issue of the certificate of identity is in the interest of the Republic of Austria. This must be proven.

To prove that it is not possible to obtain a passport of one's own

The certificate of identity for persons with subsidiary protection status: can only be issued to persons who cannot obtain their own passport. This must normally be proven (e.g. by confirmation from the embassy). No proof is required if

- there is no embassy or consulate of the country of origin in Austria; therefore, a passport cannot be issued,
- it is known to the authority that the embassy of the respective country in Austria does not issue passports,

- the threat, on the basis of which the subsidiary protection status was granted to the person, arises from the country ("state persecution") or the country would in principle be able to protect but has failed to do so ("unwillingness of the state to protect").

Costs

- € 75.90 (issuing fee) in cash for applicants aged 12 and over
- € 30.00 for children up to 12 years of age
- 1. Passport for children below 2 years of age is free of charge

Note: € 200 and € 500 notes cannot be accepted for payment.

Scope and period of validity

The certificate of identity is valid for all countries in the world with the exception of the country of origin.

The certificate of identity is issued for the duration of the residence permit at the most.

Due to the extension of the public visiting hours, it is not necessary to come to the office before the start of the public visiting hours.
